*Pricing for the PACE Competency Assessments and Fitness for Duty Evaluations are determined during the pre-assessment process based on specialty and reason for referral.

The UC San Diego Physician Assessment and Clinical Education (PACE) Program specializes in assessing competency and fitness for duty, monitoring in clinical practice, and providing remedial education to physicians and other health care professionals. In collaboration with physicians, state medical boards, hospitals and others, The PACE Program works to promote public protection, patient safety, and the attainment of the highest possible quality of clinical care. Part of the UC San Diego School of Medicine, The PACE Program draws from the resources of the School, which includes an outstanding faculty representing over 30 specialties and subspecialties of medicine. The PACE Program is entirely funded by the tuition from its various programs.

Coming in Early 2018: A new resource to combat and prevent BURNOUT in physicians...

The PACE Program is pleased to announce a new offering to help physicians build a reservoir of resilience and combat the effects of burnout, a widespread syndrome among physicians. This phenomenon is characterized by emotional depletion, going through the motions, and low personal achievement. The weekend course will take place in San Diego, and is scheduled to launch in the Fall of 2017. Topics include:

- The definition, causes, and consequences of burnout
- Cognitive aspects of burnout
- Building a resilience toolkit
- Values and priorities
- Mindfulness
- Obstacles to wellness
- Personal planning and commitment to balance
